Make an Impact in an Emergency

UNICEF leads in times of emergency.

$5 could provide a malnourished child with therapeutic food for at least three days.

$30 could provide a First Aid Kit, the first line of defense for an injured child when time is of the essence and a medical center is distant or destroyed.

$55 could provide four children with enough Micronutrient Powder, or nutrition-boosting 'sprinkles,' for seven and a half months. In very young children, who are most at risk, this small but mighty sachet helps prevent anemia, blindness and brain damage, just a few of the serious health problems caused by dietary deficiencies.

$250 could provide 50 vaccines and 1 customized School-in-a-Box kit for 40 students.

$500 could provide two adolescent kits packed with puzzles, art materials and games to help up to 100 young people express their emotions, as well as develop life skills, in the aftermath of conflict or disaster. The kit uses arts, innovation and adolescent-led projects and is designed to be flexible and easily adapted to the capacities, interests and priorities of the adolescents who are using it.

$2,000 could provide a durable tent large enough to operate health services, feeding and operations centers and temporary schools, and protect supplies. These UNICEF tents are safe and easy to transport to erect a shelter wherever most needed.

$2,500 could provide lifesaving emergency assistance such as blankets, plastic sheeting, mats, cooking sets, jerry cans, soap and hygiene kits for roughly 16 families who've lost their homes. ●
