Dear Friend,

A child’s fifth birthday is a joyful moment for most parents, a milestone signifying the end of a wonderful period, though sometimes a tough one. After the candles are blown out and all the presents opened, more than a few parents have taken a deep breath and said, “Wow, we survived.”

Of course, in much of the world, the fifth birthday marks a different kind of milestone, with the realization that “my child survived.” That’s because in so many places, for so many children, just living to age five is a battle, one that many don’t win — 21,000 every day, more than 7 million every year.

Every child deserves a fifth birthday. We invite you to join UNICEF’s campaign to save children’s lives. You can start right now by shopping this catalog and buying UNICEF cards and gifts for your friends and family. Whether it’s for birthdays and holidays, special occasions or just because, you’ll find wonderful ways to celebrate all of your key milestones.

Caryl M. Stern

President & CEO, U.S. Fund for UNICEF

We’re committed to the responsible use of the planet’s natural resources by printing this catalog with 10% Post-Consumer Waste content and fiber from well-managed forests.
Saving the Children of Sahel

More than one million children are at risk of starving to death in West Africa’s Sahel region, suffering from severe acute malnutrition because of drought, poor harvests and rising food prices. UNICEF and its partners are delivering desperately needed food and other life-saving supplies and services to the Sahel, one of the world’s poorest regions, to help save the lives of children like 6-month-old Maniratou Mahamadou.

Add more sparkle to your holiday wish list.

Caring for Moms and Babies

Aminata Sheriff and her 9-month-old malnourished daughter are at a health center in Freetown, Sierra Leone. The country is one of the riskiest places in the world to give birth, the result of chronic poverty and malnutrition and a war-decimated health infrastructure. By the end of 2011, a UNICEF-assisted program had trained more than 500 health workers in pre- and post-natal care in Sierra Leone, helping to save moms and their babies.

Trick-or-Treat for UNICEF
As one of the longest-running youth volunteer initiatives in America, Trick-or-Treat for UNICEF has a deep-rooted history of child empowerment. For children, it provides an outlet to express who they are, while also helping kids in need around the world. For parents and teachers, it’s a time-tested tool that motivates kids to become active global citizens and simultaneously teaches them the fundamental value of helping others. Learn more and order your collection boxes at trickortreatforunicef.org or by phone at 1-800-FOR-KIDS.

Fighting Polio Again
A worker vaccinates a child against polio at a health center in Katanga Province. The Democratic Republic of the Congo was polio-free between 2000 and 2006, but because of a broken health system and lack of continued support, the virus has resurfaced. In response, UNICEF and its partners have launched an ambitious polio campaign to vaccinate children in the hardest-to-reach places.

Supporting Schools in Haiti
As the third anniversary of Haiti’s 2010 earthquake approaches, children study their lessons in a temporary classroom in Port-au-Prince. The earthquake disrupted schooling for some 2.5 million students, but UNICEF-supported classrooms are helping to fill part of the gap. Still, nearly half of eligible children do not attend school. With just $60, UNICEF can provide a School-in-a-Bag with basic school supplies for 40 students and their teacher—the building blocks of a good education.

Do You Believe in Zero?

We’re making great strides in the fight to save children’s lives. Five years ago, 25,500 children died every day from preventable causes. Today, it’s 21,000. With help from people like you, UNICEF and its partners are making progress in getting that number to zero. Still, there’s work to be done. We need your help. Visit www.unicefusa.org to learn what you can do.

Keeping Kids Healthy
A young boy receives medication at Pibor Boys Primary School to help treat infections. Violence in South Sudan has left more than 140,000 people in the eastern Jonglei State without the basics, including clean water and proper sanitation, which can lead to illness, malnutrition, anemia and slow cognitive development in children. With just $100, UNICEF can provide a water kit containing enough buckets, soap and water purification tablets to support the health and well-being of 10 families.

Reducing Child Labor

Some 380,000 children in Bolivia, some as young as 6, must work. However, over the past decade, the number of children working in the sugar cane harvest has dropped from 8,000 to less than 1,000 thanks to UNICEF-supported initiatives providing communities with stable schools and other support. That means children like German Tumpanillo, 13, can attend school and even have a little fun in addition to helping his family in the fields.

SAVING CHILDREN’S LIVES TAKES TEAMWORK

UNICEF can’t do it alone. It takes all of us working together to get nutrition, clean water, access to education and basic medical care to children living in the most remote places on the planet. When you buy cards and gifts from this catalog, you’re helping UNICEF give the world’s children a chance at a happy, healthy life.
